

Appendix A: Helpful Resources for Grief Writing, Research, and Responding

Fessenden & Brooks, Expressions of Care: How to Provide Grief Support, The AutoEthnographer

Beckelhimer, L. (2017). One teacher's experiences: Responding to death through language. The English Journal, 107(2), 41-46. <http://www.jstor.org/stable/26359574>.

Chang, H., Ngunjiri, F., & Hernandez, K. C. (2012). Collaborative autoethnography. Taylor & Francis Group.

Dale, S. (2023). "The write road" to self-discovery, recovery, and growth. In K. Den Elzen & R. Lengelle (Eds.), Writing for wellbeing: Theory, research, and practice (pp. 48-61). Routledge.

Den Elzen, K., Breen, L. J., & Neimeyer, R. A. (2023). Rewriting grief following bereavement and non-death loss: A pilot writing-for-wellbeing study. British Journal of Guidance & Counselling, 51(3), 425-443. <https://doi.org/10.1080/03069885.2022.2160967>.

Den Elzen, K., & Lengelle, R. (2023). A tale of two widows: Investigating meaning-making and identity development through writing in the face of grief. British Journal of Guidance & Counselling, 51(3), 355-366. <https://doi.org/10.1080/03069885.2022.2070126>.

Frow, C. A., & Filak, M. R. (2017). "Give sorrow words": A lesson learned. The English Journal, 107(2), 19-24. <http://www.jstor.org/stable/26359570>.

hooks, b. (2003). Heart to heart: Teaching with love. In Teaching community: A pedagogy of hope (pp. 127-137). Routledge.

Lattanzi, M., & Hale, M. E. (1985). Giving grief words: Writing during bereavement. OMEGA—Journal of Death and Dying, 15(1), 45-52. <https://doi.org/10.2190/TT15-WAPL-LLMT-X2WD>.

Lengelle, R., & Den Elzen, K. (2023). Introduction. In K. Den Elzen & R. Lengelle (Eds.), Writing for wellbeing: Theory, research, and practice (pp. 1-7). Routledge.

Matthews, A. (2019). Writing through grief: Using autoethnography to help process grief after the death of a loved one. Methodological Innovations, 12(3). <https://doi.org/10.1177/2059799119889569>.

Piotrowski, E. S. (2017). Liberatory grief: The one truly serious pedagogical problem. The English Journal, 107(2), 66-71. <http://www.jstor.org/stable/26359579>.

Tayles, M. (2021). Trauma-informed writing pedagogy: Ways to support student writers affected by trauma and traumatic stress. Teaching English in the Two-Year College, 48(3), 295-313.

Spear, R. N. (2014). "Let me tell you a story": On teaching trauma narratives, writing, and healing. Pedagogy, 14(1), 53-79. <https://doi.org/10.1215/15314200-2348911>.

Varga-Dobai, K. (2023). Writing for wellness: Storytelling, care, and reflection in teacher education. Literacy. <https://doi.org/10.1111/lit.12316>.

Willer, E. K., Krebs, E., Castaneda, N., & Samaras, A. (2021). Mad to the bone: Learning outcomes of critical grief pedagogy. Communication Education, 70(1), 27-48. <https://doi.org/10.1080/03634523.2020.1834118>.

Yaconelli, M. (2022). Storycatcher: Between the listening and the telling—How stories can save us. Broadleaf Books.